FAITH HEALING A FACT. Making a Man Well by Inducing Him

The grand jury met yesterday and transacted a large amount of business. The following indictments were found against persons now in the county jail:

Assault and Batt-ry—John Johnson will be tried before the Criminal Court for striking, beating and bruising Helen Green. James Glass, who has the same name, but little else, in common with the famous Capt. Jim, now in the State's Prison, is charged with having committed an assault and battery on Tennie Creag There were two true bills against Ed Young, the "celebrated politicianer," one for striking John R. Miller, and the other for administering a dose of baseball bat to his wife.

Attempt to Kill—The indictment sgainst John Johnson, colored, charges him with

Attempt to Kill—The indictment sgainst John Johnson, colored, charges him with an attempt to commit murder in the second degree. He deliberately shot Dinah Watson, formerly his wife, because she declined to give him the custody of their child. He has had a tasts of penitentiary life already, and is evidently anxious for another dose.

"Malicious stabbing" is the title of the indictment against William Johnson, no relative of the shooter. He dangerously stabbed another darky named Clark Robinson, July 5th.

Reuben Inge is the cornfield gentleman who tried a knock-down argument-upon Henry Isabel, in a cotton patch north of the city, on the 8th instant. He struck him on the head with the business end of a hoe.

**Riscellaneous Indictments.**

It is the tatilt that heals, not the hypothecated source, or object, of faith outside the subject of faith. The whole process is self-contained. Nothing is done for the believer; his act of believing is the motor force of his cure. We all remember the old trick of making a man ill by persistently telling him he is ill, until he believes it. The contrary of this is to make a man well by inducing him to believe himself to be so. The number of the "miracles" performed will be the precise number of the persons who are capable of being thrown into a state of mind and body in which "faith" dominates the organic state. Pathologists will limit the area of this process to the province of functional disease; but we are not sure that they are justified by scientific facts in making this limitation. Annie Farrell will be tried for kee, ing a house of ill-fame.

In Chancery.

In the Chancery Court the only bill filed was one by T. A. Deloach, sen of C Deloach, saking the court to correct the description of a pisms of troperty deeded in the chancer of shooting Dinah Watson, will have to answer the charge of carrying a pistol. It must not be forgotten that function goes before organism in development, and that there are large classes of cases in which the disabilities of a diseased organ for a fair performance of the functions are mainly due to a want of power or irregularity in action. And it is a fact in pathology that if the function of an organ be maintained or restored, much of the destructive metamorphosis due to the proliferation of connective tissue, fatty deposit, or even certain forms of athropic change in which the nuclei of cell-life are rather denuded than destroyed, may be arrested, and, to some extent, repaired. The vis medicatrix mature is a very potent factor in the amelioration of disease, if only it be allowed fair play. An exercise of "faith" as a rule suspends the operation of adverse influences, and appeals strongly through the consciousness to the inner and underlying faculty of vital force.

Deloach, asking the court to correct the ly through the consciousness to the inner description of a piece of property deeded and underlying faculty of vital force in many intractable cases in ever in a second constant of the states that it is not a many intractable cases in ever "How about the stage?"
"It has the largest opening of any stage in America, and can be utilized to splendid advantage. It will take a pile of money to fix up the building, but the public here want a chear form of amtisement, and I intend to give it to them. With reasonably good attractions I can get a big lot of people in that building at a quarter spiece."
"Do you think you can heat it?"
"Certainly. Filtrun a network of iron rusre are many intractable cases in every practice which might be "cured by faith." It is well that the poor persons faith." It is well that the poor persons should be benefited by some means, it matters little what; and if they can be "healed by faith" we ought to be very glad, and thankful, too, for the mistaken gaal, and thateful, the life weak-minded zeal of those who, being weak-minded folk to their advantage. LOLFTY FALL. Painter Tumbles from the Top of a Forty-Foot Ladder. While at work on the residence of Mr. terday evening, Henry Kemker, a painter, met with a serious accident—so serious that the wonder is he did not lose his life. that the wonder is he did not loss his life. He was standing on the top rung of a ladder forty feet long, raised against the side of the building, which is two stories and an attic high, when the ladder suddenly slipped. He lost his footing and feel the entire distance upon a pile of bricks, striking upon his hands and kneess. His right arm was broken, a fearful gash cut in his forehead, and a number of severe bruises inflicted upon various parts of his body, but he had sufficient consciousness about him to enable him to rise and stagger a few feet, when he fell renseless and bleeding to the ground.
